

REPRIEVE SAVES SACCO-VANZETTI; BOMBS RUIN SACRAMENTO THEATER

FIRE FOLLOWS BLASTS; LOSS WAS $400,000

Three Firemen Hurt—
Sympathizers With
Radicals Blamed

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Aug. 11.—A series of explosions, believed to have been caused by bombs, wrecked the State Theater here today, causing an estimated loss of $400,000, police declared they believed the bombs had been laid by Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers. Police explained that they had no definite clue connecting the explosion with radical agitators other than the fact that the theater had no known enemies and that the explosion could not have been caused by an accidental accumulation of gas or some other means.

Had the blasts and fire come two hours earlier the lives of approximately 1500 patrons of the select motion picture theater would have been jeopardized. The last show let out shortly before midnight; the first explosion came at 2 a. m.

Fire shot seventy-five feet into the air after the first explosion, firemen reported, and four or five smaller blasts let go in its wake. Three firemen were hurt fighting the fire and keeping it confined to the theater building proper. Assistant Fire Chief Terrence Muligan was trapped when a section of the building caved in. He was rescued by his comrades a half hour later and was unconscious from breathing smoke fumes. Theodore Measure, engineer, was badly cut when a balcony of the building collapsed. Howard Dunn was knocked unconscious by a falling rafter.

The walls of the theater remained standing, but the interior was completely gutted by the flames. For a time the fire threatened to spread to adjoining buildings, but firemen finally succeeded in hemming it in.

The theater is owned by the T. and D. Corporation, and for a long time has been considered the finest in the city.

FORD PRODUCTION WILL START SOON

DETROIT, Aug. 11.—Production of the new Ford car will start within the next few weeks it was announced today by the Ford Motor company. The new model has been perfected and is now in the testing stage, it was said.

Waving red flags and singing "The Red Flag" and the "Internationale," the mob tried to fight its way past a cordon of 1,000 foot and mounted policemen into Grosvenor Gardens.

There were 500 policemen in line when the mob began marching down Park Lane in the direction of the embassy. In the van was a young, bobbed haired girl wildly gesticulating and shouting:

"The damned American torturers are not going to kill our Sacco and Vanzetti."

Rapidly reinforced by thousands the mob numbered fully 10,000 when it reached the approaches to Grosvenor Gardens. Mounted police rode in and out attempting to break the crowd into groups, but were unsuccessful.

The situation began to get ugly by midnight and orders were given for the mounted police to charge the mob with drawn batons in an effort to force it back towards Hyde Park.

Mounted police in heavy formation drove their horses into the press, forcing the crowd into side streets amid the shrieks of women, many of whom fainted and had to be taken into adjacent houses for first aid treatment.

The crowd scattered in all directions fighting and struggling with the police. A solid mass of people jammed against the balustrade of a house were precipitated into an area way when other crowds fleeing from the police, were forced against them.

FLIGHTS HELD UP

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., Aug. 11.—High winds prevented Capt. Frank T. Courtney, British air ace, from hopping off today on his flight to New York.

PARIS, Aug. 11.—Continued reports of adverse weather off the coast delayed the trans-Atlantic flight of Charles A. Levine and Maurice Drouhin in the plane Columbia.

MAY POSTPONE HAWAII AIR RACE DEFENSE STARTS NEW FIGHT

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—The first of a series of new and involved legal moves to save Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti from the electric chair was under way today. Decision of the question of permitting the bill of exceptions to his dismissal of the petition for a writ of error made by the defense to go to the full bench of the state supreme court is to come from Judge George A. Sanderson.

Pending the decision, other legal proceedings were held in abeyance by defense lawyers, led by former district Attorney Arthur D. Hill.

The petition for a writ of error was brought on the ground of alleged prejudice by trial Judge Webster Thayer. The "evidence" was a series of affidavits recounting alleged conversations by the jurist and his alleged "unfair" attitude on the bench in connection with the radical beliefs of Sacco and Vanzetti. An investigating committee of Governor Alvan T. Fuller, however, found that while the judge was "indiscreet" in conversations outside the courtroom, on the bench he was fair and impartial. A new affidavit was brought here today from Dartmouth College.

The Alma Mater of Judge Thayer, it was from Professor James E. Richardson and told of an alleged statement regarding radicals by the judge. If Judge Sanderson decides he has the "power and duty," the exceptions will go to the full bench. Five justices within reach of Boston were notified by telegram today to be in readiness to sit here Monday.

Governor Alvan T. Fuller in granting the respite until midnight August 22 said the courts had no power to give one, and that he was so acting to "afford the courts an opportunity to complete the consideration of the proceedings now pending." The governor was said to be of the opinion that Sacco and Vanzetti have had a fair trial, that Judge Thayer was fair and that the course of the law has been halted too long already. However, he took into consideration the plea of defense counsel Hill that more time should be given for the consideration and deciding of various new motions. The governor's respite was endorsed by the executive council, although two councillors were understood to have been against another delay.

Four late arrivals were expected to reach the Bay region today. They are Capt. William Erwin of Dallas; Charles W. Parkhurst of Peoria; Capt. James Giffin and Capt. Arthur V. Rogers, Giffin and Rogers will fly from Los Angeles. With seven other flyers on the starting line, only one entrant, Capt. Frederick A. Giles, now in Detroit, is unaccounted for. Capt. Giles was reported due to leave for the coast today, which will give him scant time for the requisite inspection of his plane and equipment.

OAKLAND, Cal., Aug. 11.—A two weeks' postponement of the $35,000 flight to Honolulu was recommended today by the flight starting committee in a cablegram sent to the Honolulu Chapter of the National Aeronautical Association, Capt. C. W. Saunders, chairman of the local committee, announced.

"We feel that this postponement is necessary for safety's sake," Saunders explained. "Preliminary examination has shown that neither the men nor the planes are ready for this long 2,400-mile hop across the Pacific."

It was reported that the labor party leaders have agreed to support Republic in a campaign to have removed from the Irish Free State constitution the requirement that members of the Dail subscribe to the oath of allegiance.

The Cosgrave government is expected to meet with defeat tomorrow in a motion for adjournment, and the government is expected to resign almost immediately.

General elections are forecast for the near future.

GRAZ, Austria, Aug. 11.—An attempt to assassinate former King George of Greece at the railway station at Kikinda, near the Roumanian border, was reported today by the newspaper Grazer Tagepost.

According to the report, an unidentified assailant, said to be a Roumanian journalist, broke through the police cordon and fired several shots into the former king's apartment aboard the train. None of the shots took effect.

The assailant was arrested, and police announced they discovered a number of incriminating documents on his person. These were confiscated.

Antonicci was employed by the bank as a teller in the foreign department when the alleged embezzlement took place. He is also said to have confessed that he bombed a house in Youngstown and another in Revona, Pa., in attempts to revenge himself on a former sweetheart who married another man.

DENNISON, O., Aug. 11.—Floyd Gottrel, 19, was recovering today from a bullet wound in the shoulder, suffered when a bullet fired by Patrolman Orville Rea at a groundhog ricocheted off a rock and struck Gottrel, a bystander.

NEW SAFETY CHIEF UHRICHVILLE, O., Aug. 11.—Walter Shaffer has been named safety director of this city, following the resignation of Charles Pfeiffer.

DAD WINS, SON LOSES NEWCOMERSTOWN, O., Aug. 11.—Charles Starker will be the Republican candidate for mayor of this city, but his son, Charles Starker, Jr., candidate for the nomination for city clerk was defeated by another candidate.

DAYTON, O., Aug. 11.—Mrs. Mabel Smith, 35, and her daughter, Betty, 2, are dead, and W. L. Smith, 35, is unconscious with a fractured skull here today, as the result of a collision between their auto and an interurban at Vandalia, near here, Wednesday night. A second child, Mary, 4, sustained only minor injuries.

LONDON COMMUNISTS WARN AMERICA OF REPRISALS IN CASES OF RADICALS

THIRTY FIVE HURT DURING HUGE RIOTS NEAR U. S. EMBASSY

Bobbed Haired Girl
Leads Rioters—Police Effective

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Order was restored by the police early today after a violent outbreak of rioting when thousands of Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers, led by men and women communists, tried to march upon the United States embassy in Grosvenor Gardens.

Thirty-five persons were injured when mounted police drove into the wildly shouting mob in an effort to disperse it.

It was the worst disorder that England has seen since the general strike.

The riot followed a mass meeting of 10,000 persons in Hyde Park at which inflammatory speeches were made.

A. J. ("Emperor") Cook, leader of last year's coal strike, declared:

"I warn you, I warn America that if they murder these two men (Sacco and Vanzetti) we will get even with them."

At the conclusion of the Hyde Park meeting Cook urged the demonstrators to march upon the American embassy and make a show of force in hope that the ambassador, A. B. Houghton, (who is at present on vacation in Scotland), would be frightened into calling the state department to urge that the Sacco-Vanzetti death sentences be remitted.

Waving red flags and singing "The Red Flag" and the "Internationale," the mob tried to fight its way past a cordon of 1,000 foot and mounted policemen into Grosvenor Gardens.

There were 500 policemen in line when the mob began marching down Park Lane in the direction of the embassy. In the van was a young, bobbed haired girl wildly gesticulating and shouting:

PREDICT STANDARD AND SHELL BATTLE

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 11.—A gasoline war between Standard Oil Company and the Royal Dutch-Shell combination, Standard Oil's most powerful competitor, will be fought out, with Cleveland as the chief battleground, within the next few months, it was predicted here today.

Royal Dutch-Shell is planning to spend several million dollars for the construction of warehouses and other projects in this city, according to well founded reports, and will launch at once into an extensive underselling campaign.

Fred Caley, secretary of the Cleveland Automobile Club, predicted that the situation would result in a drastic slashing of gasoline prices.

"Let 'em fight," Caley remarked. "The Standard-Shell war in Chicago was a real thing for the motorists. Cheaper and better gas all the way around is the result."

ENJOIN ACTION ON CANAL CONVERSION

TOLEDO, Aug. 11.—The city of Toledo today was halted in its plans for converting sections of the Miami and Erie Canal, between Toledo and Grand Rapids, O., into a scenic boulevard, as the result of a temporary injunction issued late yesterday on the petition of the Maumee Electric Power Co.

The plaintiff claims power rights in the canal and asserts no provision has been made by the city for compensating it. Conversion of the canal was authorized by the last legislature.

AUBURN, N. Y., Aug. 11.—"The days of worry are over for me, I don't let anything bother me."

John D. Rockefeller, oil magnate, made that statement after visiting his boyhood home in the Finger Lakes region.

"It is true that I am saddened now and then by the death of an old friend, but I make new ones and people are very kind to me. Then again I keep cheerful. There is enough gloom in the world and if I can spread a little sunshine in the world it helps me and I hope it helps others."

Rockefeller is on a diet, he says, but he disciplines himself to eat sparingly, though he eats whatever he likes. He gave the following as one hint to health:

"I never hurry my meals and I'm never in a hurry to leave the table. It's not good for the digestion, if people will use common sense in eating, they won't have much trouble with their stomachs."

REPUBLICANS TAKE FREE STATE OATH; IS POLITICAL MOVE

Allegiance Is Empty Formality Said Of De-Valera Action

DUBLIN, Aug. 11.—The Republican deputies in the Dail Eireann, led by Eamon De Valera, today, for the first time since the establishment of the Irish Free State, took the oath of allegiance to the Free State government and the British crown.

It was the first time the "die-hard" Republican leaders had admitted their allegiance in any way to the crown since De Valera established the "Irish Republic."

In a statement issued previous to the administration of the oath, the Fianna Fail had declared that the action of the Republicans in taking the oath of allegiance was "an empty formality which is not binding."

The action of the Republicans was generally regarded as a political move toward unseating President William Cosgrave and his cabinet.

It was reported that the labor party leaders have agreed to support Republic in a campaign to have removed from the Irish Free State constitution the requirement that members of the Dail subscribe to the oath of allegiance.

The Cosgrave government is expected to meet with defeat tomorrow in a motion for adjournment, and the government is expected to resign almost immediately.

Keep Fit!

Good Health Requires Good Elimination.

To be well, you must keep the blood stream free from impurities. If the kidneys lag, allowing body poisons to accumulate, a toxic condition is created. One is apt to feel dull, languid, tired and aching. A nagging backache is sometimes a symptom, with drowsy headaches and dizzy spells. That the kidneys are not functioning properly is often shown by burning or scanty passage of secretions. If you have reason to suspect improper kidney functioning, try Doan's Pills—a tested stimulant diuretic. Users praise them throughout the United States. Ask your neighbor!

MUNICIPAL BAND TO GIVE FREE CONCERT ON THURSDAY NIGHT

A concert Thursday evening on the Court House Square by the Xenia Municipal Band under the direction of Walter Sayrs is being donated by band members because the city has given the band use of the room above the old engine house on W. Second St., for practice purposes.

The band has been making use of the room for several weeks and the members have fitted it up in attractive and comfortable fashion. The program, which will begin at 8 o'clock, follows:

March—"Flanders" McMichael
Overture—"Crown Prince" Barnard
Selections from "Bohemian Girl" Balfé
"Moonbeam, Kiss Her For Me" Waltz—"Flowers of the Wild-wood" Skaggs
"American Patrol" Meacham
"Dance of the Imps" King
"Star Spangled Banner"

SEEKS HERDS THAT PRODUCE HIGHLY

How many dairy herds average 300 pounds of butter fat per cow yearly? asks J. R. Kimmer, county agent. This question is important to dairymen because 300 pounds is about twice the average production of all dairy cows and indicates a profitable herd, he says.

Records analyzed by the United States department of agriculture on 18,000 cows in cow-testing associations indicate that an average production of 150 pounds means a net return of $26 above cost of feed. A cow producing 300 pounds makes a profit of $74, or almost three times as much as the cow which produces only half that amount. The same number of good cows will produce twice as much butter fat and make almost as much profit.

AMERICAN ROLLING MILLS ANNOUNCES LARGE EXPANSION

MIDDLETOWN, O., Aug. 11.—With the acquisition of the property, plants, business and patents of the Forged Steel Wheel Co., at Elyria, Ohio and the Columbia Steel Co., of Butler Pa., by the American Rolling Mill Co., of this city, at a reported price of $20,000,000, the latter corporation takes its place in industry as one of the half-dozen largest companies in the steel world.

Contracts for purchase of the Butler and Elyria concerns, which were amalgamated last year, have recently been signed, according to announcement of George M. Verity, president of the "Armco" corporation. The plants were to be taken over August 1, and together with the development of a second unit of the company at Ashland, Ky., and the improvements contemplated in connection with the parent plant here, total assets of the American Rolling Mills Co., will total not less than $100,000,000.

Additional employees numbering approximately 1,500 will be added to the company payroll, with purchase of the new units, and as there are at present about 8,500 employed in Ashland and this city, the corporation will have a total of almost 10,000 employees.

The corporation is looking forward to eventually producing from 80,000 to 100,000 tons per month. The two plants now in operation turn out 50,000 tons, and the new plant will add at least one third more tonnage, Verity declared.

Both mills have been operating at capacity since early in the spring and the year is expected to be one of the most prosperous in the company's history.

A hot and cold rolled process in the plan of manufacture has been worked out, the first of its kind in this particular system of mechanical operation. The Ashland mill was the first to develop and put into practical operation a continuous sheet metal mill, about three years ago.

The amalgamation, Verity pointed out, brings together, under the management of the American Rolling Mill Co., the two outstanding developments which cover the only known means of purely mechanical operation in the manufacture of sheet metal, either in the form of sheets or strips.

The Forged Steel Wheel plant at Elyria has a capacity of 10,000 tons per month in finished forged steel wheels. The plant turns out a special high grade railway car wheel.

PORCUPINE NECK IS NEWEST MENACE FOR BOB-HAIRED WOMEN

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 2.—The menace now confronting American womanhood, according to C. A. Belmont, national vice-president of the Master Barbers' Association, is "porcupine neck," one of those insidious things you can't see, and a thing that only your barber will tell you about.

"Shave not your neck; neither let your barber do so," advises Belmont.

mont. "For who wants to kiss a neck that bristles like a porcupine's back. And the razor does bring bristles; it's an established fact."

The national barber executive, here assisting in plans for organization of the new State Board of Barber Examiners, declared that all conscientious barbers now are advising their women patrons against neck shaving. Instead they urge the use of the clippers, so that the neck may retain its softness and truly boast "a skin you love to touch."

But women are obdurate, Belmont affirmed, and "porcupine neck" is on the increase. You see evidence of this new menace, asserted Belmont, in th theatre, the street car, the church, the home, and the barber shop. You see it, in fact wherever the nape of the neck is seen.

Belmont's return to Sacramento followed a visit to Hollywood and the movie colony, whence he was called by the irate queens of film-dom to prove his recent assertion that natural blondes do not have curly hair after they reach adult years. His visit was made after many of the film stars had written him, inclosing blonde curls and defying him to prove that they "got that way" in a beauty parlor or the privacy of milady's boudoir.

And Belmont claims that he proved the truth of his contention. True blondes, born that way, with all-golden or straw white hair, do not have natural curls, he insists. To clinch the argument, he put the allegedly blonde curls under a microscope, as it is a scientifically established fact that blonde hair is flat, while dark hairs are round. This is one feature that can not be changed in the beauty parlor, he said, and most of the blonde curls turned out to be round under the microscope. The curl in the real blonde hairs, the glass revealed, had been acquired permanent wave fashion.

MUST KEEP INFORMED

An outline of President Coolidge's daily program states that the first thing he does each day is to read the newspapers. The habit of regular newspaper reading is one of the essentials of success in any line of work. We all make our living by some plan we have formed for serving the public. We can not serve the public intelligently until we learn what the public wants, and how its ideals and habits are shifting from day to day. The newspapers provide that information in each issue, through their advertising, news and editorial columns. When you find out what the world is doing, you know what you have to do yourself to please it.

OUTLIVING SUPERSTITIONS

More people are superstitious than one ordinarily might think. Many people say they are not superstitious when they are; they will not admit it, but, nevertheless, these same people will not walk under a ladder and they have a queer feeling whenever a black cat crosses their path—that is, many of them do.

Then, again, there are many people who are superstitious and do not know it; they are led this way and that way, unconsciously, by some little faith they can not account for in something they know nothing about.

But the world gradually is outliving the superstitions that vexed it and caused much unhappiness.

The Way of the World

DIVORCE

If you have been married seven years walk softly and speak sweetly. There is danger in the air. Chicago courts grant 11,000 divorces a year. The average duration of the marriages is seven years. The commonest charge is desertion, which means that the couple has been separated two years. But a small percentage of men and women with children come to the divorce court.

PLENTY TO DO

Thomas A. Edison, old man, keeps on working. He is recruiting college students to help develop native rubber plants. The smarter the man the more likely he is to continue working when he is old if his health lets him. It ought to give all of us—from Edison all the way down—much satisfaction to find there is always plenty to do. What a dismal world it would be if there were no jobs.

UNCLE SAM FLIES

Hoover, secretary of commerce, predicts air traffic will increase to 25,000 miles daily by January 1. Hoover doesn't do much guessing. He generally knows what he is talking about.

If he is right about this prediction it means that air mileage in the United States next year will equal that of Europe. Who said Uncle Sam was so far behind in flying?

POLICE AND PLANES

Four policemen from a small Indiana city have been robber hunting in an airplane. Crime is going to be more difficult. Offenders will find it harder to hide. The airplane is about to take its place as a moral force.

THE WAY OF PEACE

The late Andrew Carnegie did no greater work than to set up a fund of millions for the bringing of world peace. This year a party of newspaper editors will be taken abroad that they may understand conditions in Europe and come home and be more "internationally minded" than they were before. It is a great effort and worth making. "International mind" is being established in public libraries. Some are willed with books designed to make children internationally minded. That's most important of all.

It is time we understood that the mind and the heart are not to be ruled by national boundaries.

The Theatre

By FLEET SMITH

I believe the movie industry has done as much to develop aviation as any industry, or more. I was surprised to learn that the motion picture companies are the largest users of commercial planes. With the launching recently of Paramount News, there was a total of six news-reels in the field each working against time to get pictures of big current events on the screen. All of these news-reels use planes, first in getting their cameramen to the spot where hot news breaks and later in getting the films distributed throughout the country.

It is not only the news-reel a mushroom city. It actually branch of the movies that has sprang up in two weeks. Not only helped develop aviation. I really did it house the 1,250 actors, acrobats, and technicians, and mechanics, but there were more than 100 not yet been shown to the public, will do as much to arouse interest in the development of flying as a trans-oceanic flight, miles from Los Angeles. Contact "Wings" is the film epic of aviation with Hollywood maintained by it. It has been more than a means of daily airplane trips, year in the making. The first plane was used in transportation of the picture was in taking the film plane across the country a few days ago by the man who wrote the story—John Monk Saunders. He wanted to be in New York for the premiere showing of the picture and didn't think he could get there in time by rail, so he flew with the film from San Francisco to the big city on the Hudson.

If it is not where you are this summer think of the poor movie extras who are out in the desert under the broiling sun and with nothing in sight but sand. The Paramount company established a desert city of 1,250 people near Guadalupe, Calif., for the "shooting" of exteriors in its picture "Beau Sabreur" a companion picture of "Beau Geste," which recently ended a record run in New York and other cities as a road-show attraction.

The tent city where the "Beau Sabreur" company has been spending weeks can truthfully be called

Any variant of the everyday familiar roast of meat is welcome. Did you ever try a fruit roast? The recipe is given below and is well worth trying if you are not already acquainted with it. Make the angel food cake into mayonnaise.

Tenderloin Roast with Fruit and Sauce
Small Whole Potatoes French Fried Hard Rolls Butter
Chilled Tomatoes Filled with Cream Saw
Angel Cake with Berries and Whipped Cream
Iced Tea

TODAY'S RECIPES

Tenderloin Fruit Roast—When possible roast the meat in a waterless roaster, which adds doubly to the flavor of any roast. After allowing twenty-five minutes to the pound for roasting, place the finished product on a large platter. Then place halved pears on the meat and cover with this pear syrup: One and one-half cups pear syrup, one-fourth cup of brown sugar, two tablespoons cornstarch, one-eighth teaspoon salt. Rind and juice one lemon.

Bring the ingredients to the boiling point and then boil three minutes. Pour over meat and serve hot. Any fruit may be substituted.

Chilled tomatoes with Cream Slaw—Peel tomatoes, scoop out center and chill on ice. Fill with finely chopped cabbage mixed with the following dressing: One teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon mustard, dash of cayenne, one-half cup hot milk, two teaspoons butter, one-fourth cup hot vinegar. Mix mustard, salt, cayenne and sugar in double boiler. Add egg (unbeaten), mix well, add hot milk, then butter. Cook until mixture thickens (about ten minutes), stirring constantly. Remove from fire and beat hot vinegar in gradually. Strain and pour over cabbage. Serve cold.

Angel Cake—Whites of nine eggs, one cup granulated sugar, one teaspoon cream tartar, one cup flour, one teaspoon vanilla. Beat eggs to a stiff froth, stir in sugar by degrees. Sift flour four times, put in cream tartar and sift again. Stir lightly and bake thirty minutes in moderate oven. Do not open oven for ten minutes.

Anchovies are tiny fish preserved in oil. They may be in strips or rolled. They are served as a relish like sardines.

APPLE PUDDING

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe.)
One cup sugar, one tablespoon butter, one egg, one cup milk, two teaspoons baking powder, two cups flour. Cut apples in eighths and spread a layer on top. Sprinkle with granulated sugar.

UNDERSTANDING JUDGE

CHICAGO, Ill.—Jimmy Johnson knows not only how to turn shaggy and fuzzy individuals into slick, shiny gentlemen, but he also knows their peculiar desire for a certain kind of tonic. Thus, when one entered his barber shop he was confronted with a question: "Tonic, sir?" And upon saying "Yes" a glass of the most refreshing tonic appeared immediately. But Frank Zink, a patrolman did not have proper appreciation for this kind of refreshment and ordered the barber to appear before the judge. "Did you have a warrant?" asked the judge. "No," replied the patrolman. "Case dismissed," said the judge.

WHY ARE YOUR DOG'S ANTICS SO FUNNY?

Nearly every morning my mail contains at least one dog letter—that is, a letter from somebody, often a total stranger, who somehow knows that I like dogs and is kind enough to send me an interesting observation about dog behavior.

The most amusing dog story in several weeks comes from Dr. E. H. Schwarz, of Edwardsville, Ill., who tells of his pet bull terrier. It seems that they take a walk together every afternoon, and on the way home always drop in at a butcher shop where he buys the dog a bone. This the dog personally carries home, and he never tries to unwrap or eat the bone en route. But if he sees another dog that he wishes to bark at, he brings the bone to his master to hold for him until after he is through barking.

When he has said to the other dog all that he thinks necessary, he again takes the bone in his mouth and continues the homeward journey, rejoicing.

This little dog's caprice struck me as so funny that I laughed until two neighbors standing nearby became concerned about me and exchanged glances.

Then, still chuckling inwardly, I tried to figure out just why it is that such absurd little dog whimsies should seem so ludicrous. How does it come that one finds Will Rogers so amazingly stupid and yet is amused by a dog? Why do most people derive more good laughs from a playful pup than from a professional comedian?

Why is it funny for a dog to do something that would not be especially mirth-provoking if done by a man? It is just as natural for a dog to bark at another dog as for a man to light his pipe. Yet who would laugh if a man asked you to hold a package of meat while he gets a light?

Perhaps Mr. Bergson, in his famous essay on Laughter, has at least part of the answer. He points out that nothing is funny unless human. A dog, or a rock, or a mountain, is never funny unless it makes us think of a person. But, also, those things are funny which give us a kind of shock. Indeed, probably the first element of humor, is surprise. We are surprised when we see something in an unexpected place. Humorous essays often depend on misplaced nomenclature. An account of a piano recital may be funny if described in golf or baseball terms.

Hence, a dog is funniest when it does, unexpectedly, what a human being might do.

Little Old New York

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Yesterday I saw a sign in a subway train advertising an imported car. In the whole country I don't believe there are more than five hundred of these cars. The least they sell for is well over $10,000. The upkeep is terrific; parts are hard to get; the car is suited only for the very rich. And yet the agent confidently hopes to secure business by sticking up a few colored cards in subway cars.

In to a store to buy a pair of shoes. After finishing my purchase I was virtually forced to stay and listen to the salesman. It was a rainy day and he was evidently lonely. His manner was emphatic, argumentative. Showing me a pair of black shoes he said:

"See those? Look like patent leather, don't they? I had to take them out of the window because people were sure they were patent leather—wouldn't believe me when I showed them the same model in stock. That's because I shine 'em often."

"Take that window there now. How many pairs do you think are there?"

I hazarded sixteen, wondering if this was a new game.

"There are nineteen pairs of shoes in that window," he replied dramatically. "Yesterday I shined them all. Tomorrow I shine the ones in the next window. Day after I go at the back windows. Every window features one model. That one features 618, the other 635, the back window 701 and 630. Next week we feature—"

And he went on naming strings of numbers, shaking his finger at me. No doubt to him these numbers all had some distinct meaning. How I could have been expected to realize their significance was beyond my comprehension. He went on and on.

I was told how many hours a day he worked; what days he was free, when and where he intended to take his vacation. The policy of the store was big-hearted and accommodating. The founder was forty years old, a bachelor and had trouble with his liver. He was just beginning to tell me about the bright thing his infant child said, when I sneaked out the door and walked hastily away.

Objections to Hog Meat

"What is the objection to the use of hog meat," Mrs. B. wants to know.

For those who have healthy digestive systems, there is no objection to the use of meat from hogs that have been fed in a cleanly manner and are free from trichina, and tape worm, or other diseases. Mrs. B. trichina is a very pernicious worm that hogs get from eating infected rats. The worms settle in their muscle tissues in little cysts and meat from such animals, if not very thoroughly cooked to destroy the embryonic worms, will infect the person who eats it.

The little encysted worms escape into the stomach and intestines causing an intense irritation with diarrhea and the passing of many worms. What is still worse, many of these worms migrate to the muscles and organs, and if there are very many of them, they cause death. Infected hog meat can also cause tape worms, as I told a correspondent yesterday.

Hog meat may be quite fat and may be indigestible to some. It certainly is a food to be avoided by those who are trying to reduce. Don't eat any meat that has foreign looking specks on it ("measly" beef or pork, it is called.)

Trouble in Gaining

"Dear Doctor: I belong to the T. T. M. I find that every time I begin to force my food, especially the fats and sweets, or take chocolate sodas in the afternoon, I have diarrhea. This condition has to be followed by a light diet, and I lose what I have gained."

MRS. M.
It is not an uncommon experience for those who are trying to gain, Mrs. M., to find that fats and sweets will cause disturbances, so these should be increased very slowly. Cream seems to be the food that sets the least, and if I were you, I would try to take more cream. It would be a good idea to take one ounce of cream and two ounces of milk, two or three times during the day, between meals, and then gradually increase it until you can take it oftener and richer.

Egg yolks, though high in fat, also seem to agree with most. They are also high in iron, which you undoubtedly need. It would be a good plan to take an egg yolk in a half-glass of orange juice, after each meal. Try taking more of the foods that you know agree with you. You've got to stretch your stomach until it can care for more food.

Needless to say, you should have a check-up by a reliable physician to be sure it's only the lack of food that is causing your underweight and your lack of appetite. By the way, orange juice is a stimulator of the appetite, because it is so high in the vitamin B. You had better get some yeast extracts—these are put up under various trade names as vegetable extracts. They make delicious broths and are very high in vitamin B. They won't add any calories, however, so don't count on them for that. You might use the extracts for flavoring soups and sauces, and gravies; you can also make cream soups of them.

Those who need the instructions on gaining or losing weight may have our pamphlet on the subject. Enclose a four self-addressed, stamped envelope, and two cents in stamps, with request. Allow at least two weeks for its receipt.

P. S.—Mrs. H. just writes that she gained twenty-one pounds and looks and feels 100 per cent better. She states she never realized how little she was eating until she began to count her calories! Hopes for you, Mrs. M.

INDIVIDUALITY

Chapter V

"What have you been doing to Elaine, Mrs. Gibson?"
At the question I turned to face Annabelle, or Agn as she preferred to be called.

"I did not do anything to her, my dear."

"Well, someone has been peeping over her shoulder until you would not know her. The other night she almost beat me out in the popularly race."

"She came into the dining room of the Pine Tree Inn, and honestly, I never knew that little Elaine was good looking before. Up to then she always struck me as only an anemic little imitator of the girl who was first in the swim at the moment."

"We'd a night, however, she was herself and nobody else."

"I had gone out to dine with that young chap who was Princeton's star athlete last year, and I told myself that in my red and white sports suit, I would be able to cut any tiger's claws."

"We had hardly been seated at the table when Elaine and Harry came in. I had to look twice to see if it were really Elaine."

"She was all in white. I think it was white georgette. Little pleated skirt, white stockings, shoes and hat. Not a vestige of color about her, and yet, she stood out among all of us like a piece of marble statuary among a lot of left-over cigar store signs."

"My Princeton Tiger, who had been decidedly taciturn up to this moment, asked, the moment his eyes rested on her:

"Who is that stunning looking girl?"

"Now, I would hardly think that Elaine was stunning under any circumstances, so I was looking around the room to see if my 'boy friend' meant anyone else."

"I mean that little girl in white, over there," he said. "She looks like a pocket edition of the Vestal Virgin."

"That is Elaine—," I said, dryly.

"Do you know her?" he asked.

"Very well."

"Introduce me to her. I want to dance with her."

"Are you sure that Vestal Virgin is dancing?" I asked, but I was afraid unsuccessfully, to keep from letting my voice sound sarcastic.

"Sure! Of course, I'm sure. That

Here's a girl who doubts that there is romance in this dull old world:

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a girl 18. I read a great deal—Tolstoy, Dickens, Galsworthy, Maugham, as well as the poets, both old and modern. All speak of love as the grand, consuming passion. I see no evidences of such a thing on the faces of the people around me. When I go out with boys—and I have several nice friends—we have good times, but I feel no thrill. Even when I let a boy kiss me—which I do occasionally—it leaves me cold."

"Is there such a thing as love? Do you think I shall ever experience it?"

ELEANOR.
I have no doubt you will, my dear. You have not met the right man yet to stir your pulses. There really and truly is such a thing as romantic love that makes times sometimes prosaic world a rosy place and ordinary men and women "as gods."

To be courteous to ALL is a mark of good breeding.

How to Achieve Beauty

ERADICATING FRECKLES

Today I shall devote my talk to freckles, which are really the most distressing of summer beauty ills. Freckles are not on the surface of the skin, but lie just beneath the cuticle, that outside layer that is composed of tiny scales, laid all over the body like shingles on a roof. These scales are constantly rubbing off and being replaced. The outer layer of protection that keeps the sensitive skin from the agony of too much sensation.

Immediately beneath the cuticle are little cells containing the pigment or coloring matter. Their sensitiveness to outside influences differs widely with different people. Some freckle, others tan and others are little inclined to do either.

You cannot change your susceptibility to tan or freckles, you can only prevent too much contact with the sun's light rays in the ways I have told you in my talks on prevention. Usually it is the person with an exceptionally thin cuticle who freckles. To remove the blemishes, you must use a preparation that will penetrate beneath this outer layer to the pigment cells.

Lemon juice and salt, applied with a camel's hair brush, is good for removing light freckles. Let the juice dry in and later massage with a cold cream. A half witch hazel solution of peroxide and half ozal may be applied in the same way.

However, you can see from my explanation of freckles, that they are exceedingly difficult to remove. You will probably be saved much time and effort and perhaps the disappointment of unsuccessful attempts by using a good reliable freckle cream.

Then do not forget that eternal vigilance is the price of clear skin to a woman who has a tendency to freckle. You can have so much more peace of mind by protecting your skin against freckles than by removing them and then finding all your work undone by a single day's exposure.

I have spoken now of repairing freckles, tan and sunburn, the most obvious of summer beauty ills, and I shall devote some future talks to more obscure, but every bit as important, effects of the hot weather on your looks.

WIFE PRESERVERS
Dish covers should be washed as well as the dishes if you want the dinner to be successful.

girl has more sex appeal than any one here tonight. She is the kind of girl that makes almost every other girl seem blousy. Look at her mouth. You could kiss that mouth without feeling that you were putting your lips against a lump of congealed salad oil. That girl knows her onions, and she can harvest them any time she wants to. That mushy faced bit of horse-radish has not taken his eyes off her long enough to order their dinner."

"Well, I thought, I'll get the trouble over as soon as possible; so when we got up to dance, I managed to stop at Elaine's and Harry's table."

"What have you been doing to yourself?" I managed to whisper to her.

"I've been dressing my soul," she answered.

"Then I thought of my Princeton Tiger's assertion—that she looked like a Vestal Virgin, and decided that she had found herself."

"For one horrible moment I even had a temptation to buy a new white dress, throw away my rouge and lip-stick, and I came to just in time to hear Elaine say, 'Oh, I do not talk slang, I don't dance the Charleston or smoke cigarettes. Not that I find fault with any other girl for doing those things, but for me—' An expressive shrug of her shoulders and a puckering of her lips in a way that I knew made each man want to kiss her."

"A waiter at that moment said respectfully, 'Your dinner is served, Miss, and we went back to our table."

"Good heavens, did you see the way those little curls curling to that girl's white neck? A sight like that makes gentlemen forsake blondes as well as home and mother."

"I'm glad, Syd, I said, 'that you happen to be my cousin, for if you were not, I would probably go home and swallow a mercury tablet or two.'

"I'm not used to having the man with me suddenly find a Vestal Virgin with sex appeal at the next table in a hotel."

"Of course, Mrs. Gibson, I do not know yet whether Elaine is able to carry it through; but she has begun all right. She makes every man who comes near her mentally ask, 'Tell me, pretty maiden, are there any more at home like you?'"

"When we left her table to come back to our own, I heard Harry saying, 'I like your simplicity so much better, darling, than Ann's sophistication. Here I brought you my frayed pin. You promised me you would wear it, you know.'"

"Then and there I silently made a vow to be myself even if I lost out on the Vestal Virgin racket."

FAULT OR ILLNESS?

When an ordinary fault becomes exaggerated until it is an obsession, something is wrong with the person and a doctor should be called. It indicates an abnormal state of mind.

This is the case as stated in the following letter. No sane person would act as this man's wife is doing:

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I have been married for six years and have children. My wife is so jealous that it makes life miserable for me and herself too. If we have a lady friend to visit our home and I show her the least courtesy my wife accuses me of being too intimate with her. In other words, I am not allowed to speak friendly to a woman without hearing some very unpleasant remarks. If I get friendly with little girls 10 and 12 that are playing with my children she wants to know why I am always picking on little girls."

"I have tried to talk and make her understand me. I was raised to respect all ladies and I was never mistrusted by any other lady friend. I have about given up any hope of happiness, for I am not allowed to go out with a man friend without having 'women' thrown at me by my wife. We are married 25 and 30 years old."

Your wife is ill and should be taken to a good doctor, one that is skilled in mental troubles. She probably was naturally of a jealous disposition and some physical ailments has taken the form of a phobia on this one subject. As you rightly say, there can be no happiness for either of you while this continues, but she suffers, torture and should be pitied, although you doubtless feel she should control herself to a certain extent at least."

LANG CHEVROLET IN EXTRA WINNING WIN OVER POST OFFICE

It required twelve innings for Lang Chevrolet Co. to eke out a 13 to 10 victory over the last place Post Office nine in a Class B Xenia Playground League softball game at Cox Memorial Athletic Field Wednesday night.

The contest was the first extra-inning game of the league season. By its victory, the auto firm still retains a mathematical chance to tie the Firemen for the Class B championship. The Fire Department has one more game to play and Lang Chevrolet two contests.

It was a gruelling struggle all the way Wednesday. The mail carriers played air tight ball and led most of the way. The Chevrolet rallied in the first half of the ninth to tie the score at 10 to 10 by scoring three runs.

Both sides went scoreless in the tenth and eleventh frames but Lang's team pounded out three runs in the twelfth to achieve victory.

Lang started on the mound for the winners but was replaced by Gagner, who hurled fine ball. McCoy lasted the route in the box for the Post Office.

Lang's lineup: Wead, 3b; Lang, p-lb; Berger, c; Gagner, 1b-p; Smith, ss; Gibney, lf; Ratford, 2b; McCoy, rf; Rice, cf.

REPRIEVE SAVES SACCO-VANZETTI; BOMBS RUIN SACRAMENTO THEATER

FIRE FOLLOWS BLASTS; LOSS WAS $400,000

Three Firemen Hurt—
Sympathizers With
Radicals Blamed

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Aug. 11.—A series of explosions, believed to have been caused by bombs, wrecked the State Theater here today, causing an estimated loss of $400,000, police declared they believed the bombs had been laid by Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers.

Police explained that they had no definite clue connecting the explosion with radical agitators other than the fact that the theater had no known enemies and that the explosion could not have been caused by an accidental accumulation of gas or some other means.

Had the blasts and fire come two hours earlier the lives of approximately 1500 patrons of the select motion picture theater would have been jeopardized. The last show let out shortly before midnight; the first explosion came at 2 a. m.

Fire shot seventy-five feet into the air after the first explosion, firemen reported, and four or five smaller blasts let go in its wake.

Three firemen were hurt fighting the fire and keeping it confined to the theater building proper. Assistant Fire Chief Terrence Muligan was trapped when a section of the building caved in. He was rescued by his comrades a half hour later and was unconscious from breathing smoke fumes. Theodore Measure, engineer, was badly cut when a balcony of the building collapsed. Howard Dunn was knocked unconscious by a falling rafter.

The walls of the theater remained standing, but the interior was completely gutted by the flames. For a time the fire threatened to spread to adjoining buildings, but firemen finally succeeded in hemming it in.

The theater is owned by the T. and D. Corporation, and for a long time has been considered the finest in the city.

FORD PRODUCTION WILL START SOON

DETROIT, Aug. 11.—Production of the new Ford car will start within the next few weeks it was announced today by the Ford Motor company. The new model has been perfected and is now in the testing stage, it was said.

Road performance of the new car is highly satisfactory, the company said. The new automobile is capable of attaining a speed of 65 miles per hour and can be driven for hours at an average speed of more than 50 miles per hour without discomfort to driver and passengers and without harm to motor and other equipment, it was stated.

The new car consumes less gasoline and oil than any of the company's previous models, it is claimed. Quick starting and acceleration also is claimed.

SILVER MUST PAY BACK CASH TO STATE

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 11.—A thousand dollars paid to former State Representative Harry D. Silver, Eaton, for services for 1926 while he was employed as deputy state auditor, may have to be repaid into the state treasury, according to an opinion rendered here today by Attorney General Turner.

In an opinion to State Auditor Tracy, a state legislator must resign his seat before he can accept a state appointment, and must return to the treasury the salary that has been paid him for the period during which he accepts the appointment.

Silver served as a state representative during 1925-26, and was appointed a deputy state auditor in 1926. According to Turner's ruling, Silver must return the $1,000 he received for 1926.

SEEK RELATIVES

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 11.—Police today were seeking relatives of James A. Milford, 55, who drowned in a river here last night when he is believed to have fallen from a bridge. The only clue to his identity was a letter found in his clothes, written from 134 E. Parkwood Drive, Dayton, apparently from a relative, and bearing a Columbus postoffice box address.

MAY POSTPONE HAWAII AIR RACE DEFENSE STARTS NEW FIGHT

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—The first of a series of new and involved legal moves to save Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti from the electric chair was under way today.

Decision of the question of permitting the bill of exceptions to his dismissal of the petition for a writ of error made by the defense to go to the full bench of the state supreme court is to come from Judge George A. Sanderson.

Pending the decision, other legal proceeding were held in abeyance by defense lawyers, led by former district Attorney Arthur D.

Hill. The petition for a writ of error was brought on the ground of alleged prejudice by trial Judge Webster Thayer. The "evidence" was a series of affidavits recounting alleged conversations by the jurist and his alleged "unfair" attitude on the bench in connection with the radical beliefs of Sacco and Vanzetti. An investigating committee of Governor Alvan T. Fuller, however, found that while the judge was "indiscreet" in conversations outside the courtroom, on the bench he was fair and impartial.

A new affidavit was brought here today from Dartmouth College.

The Alma Mater of Judge Thayer. It was from Professor James E. Richardson and told of an alleged statement regarding radicals by the judge. If Judge Sanderson decides he has the "power and duty," the exceptions will go to the full bench. Five justices within reach of Boston were notified by telegram today to be in readiness to sit here Monday.

Governor Alvan T. Fuller in granting the respite until midnight August 22 said the courts had no power to give one, and that he was so acting to "afford the courts an opportunity to complete the consideration of the proceedings now pending." The governor was said to be of the opinion that Sacco and Vanzetti have had a fair trial, that Judge Thayer was fair and that the course of the law has been halted too long already.

However, he took into consideration the plea of defense counsel Hill that more time should be given for the consideration and deciding of various new motions. The governor's respite was endorsed by the executive council, although two councillors were understood to have been against another delay.

FLIGHT COMMITTEE FAVORS DELAY BUT TWELVE ARE READY

Four More Expected To Start—Friday Noon
Zero Hour

BAY FARM AIRPORT, OAKLAND, Cal., Aug. 11.—With taut nerves and heightened hope, twelve daring pilots awaited today the swishing arc of a checkered flag that will send them racing over the Pacific to Honolulu 2400 miles away. The $35,000 Dole air derby starts at noon, tomorrow.

Four late arrivals were expected to reach the Bay region today. They are Capt. William Erwin of Dallas; Charles W. Parkhurst of Peoria; Capt. James Giffin and Capt. Arthur V. Rogers. Giffin and Rogers will fly from Los Angeles. With seven other flyers on the starting line, only one entrant, Capt. Fredrick A. Giles, now in Detroit, is unaccounted for. Giles was reported due to leave for the coast today, which will give him scant time for the requisite inspection of his plane and equipment.

OAKLAND, Cal., Aug. 11.—A two weeks' postponement of the Dole $35,000 flight to Honolulu was recommended today by the flight starting committee in a cablegram sent to the Honolulu Chamber of the National Aeronautical Association, Capt. C. W. Saunders, chairman of the local committee, announced.

"We feel that this postponement is necessary for safety's sake," Saunders explained. "Preliminary examination has shown that neither the men nor the planes are ready for this long 2400-mile hop across the Pacific."

JEFFERSON SUES FOR RENO DIVORCE

RENO, Nev., Aug. 11.—Entering the Reno divorce court in a role strangely similar to that which he acted hundreds of times as successor to Frank Bacon as "Lightnin' Bill Jones," Thomas L. Jefferson, has filed suit for divorce against his wife.

The Jeffersons have been married forty-eight years and have three grown children. Jefferson charges that his wife, who is charged that she displayed in love scenes in "Lightnin'" and also that there have been religious differences.

In the play, the hero is sued by the wife for a Reno divorce, but there is finally a reconciliation. Jefferson says there will be no reconciliation in this true life of drama.

WILL TRY ALLEGED BANK EMBEZZLER

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 11.—Beneditto Antonucci, indicted for the embezzlement of approximately $30,000 from the Commercial National Bank of Youngstown, will be removed from the Lima state hospital for insane, and brought here for trial in federal court, according to an announcement today from U. S. Van Buren, assistant U. S. district attorney.

Antonucci was employed by the bank as a teller in the foreign department when the alleged embezzlement took place. He is also said to have confessed that he bombed a house in Youngstown and another in Revona, Pa., in attempts to revenge himself on a former sweetheart who married another man.

BYSTANDER HURT

DENNISON, O., Aug. 11.—Floyd Gottrel, 19, was recovering today from a bullet wound in the shoulder, suffered when a bullet fired by Patrolman Orville Rea at a groundhog ricocheted off a rock and struck Gottrel, a bystander.

RESPITE GIVEN PAIR TO PERMIT COUNSEL LAST MINUTE EFFORT

Governor And Executive Council Postpone Execution Until August 22—Reprieve Made Half Hour Before Death March

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—Sacco and Vanzetti still live.

Through the high slitted windows of Charlestown prison they glimpsed today the pallid light of another day. It was a day they had not expected to see, and one which they did not know they were going to see until a scant half hour before they were to have taken the short march to the electric chair.

Fiction writers often feature "an eleventh hour reprieve." The twelve-day respite given the condemned murderers of South Braintree last night by Governor Alvan T. Fuller was literally that. It was 11:27 p. m. when Warden William Hendry stalked down the corridor in front of their cells and informed them that the governor and his executive council had granted an opportunity to their counsel to make one last fight before the state courts to save them from the yawning chair in the room beyond. They were doomed to die a few minutes past 12 o'clock.

Outside the prison were more than 800 police and state troopers, armed and vigilant. Behind a "deadline" were bristling machine guns, and a flaring floodlight. Their presence attested to the fears and the precautions against trouble that the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti entailed. In Boston itself and far beyond, in New York, Chicago, London, Paris, Berlin, Moscow, all over the world, were innumerable thousands waiting word of their death. Probably no other condemned murderers in the history of the world left such a waiting audience, or had so many thousands wrought up over their impending passing.

The respite from death, agreed upon by the governor and his council after hours of debate that continued to within the very shadow of their cells, also brought twelve more days of life to Celestino Madeiros, the Portuguese murderer, who has confessed to the crime for which Sacco and Vanzetti stand convicted. The law thus far, however, has not elected to believe Madeiros. Nevertheless, it was decided he should have twelve more days of life, too. It is a pure gift for the Portuguese, for nobody is making any fight for him.

The men had been garbed for

CLEAN UP OF BORER COSTS $78,881.61

DEFIANCE, O., Aug. 11.—Uncle Sam is paying $78,881.61 to corn growers of Defiance County for cleaning up a total of 125 acres this spring as the eradication of the European corn borer.

Of the 2,610 farms in this county, inspectors have approved the clean-up of 2,556 farms and vetchers have been signed and referred to Washington officials who are writing out the checks to compensate the farmers.

The data has been compiled in the office of County Supervisor Fred W. Gares.

ELIMINATE GRADES

LONDON, O., Aug. 11.—Reports here are that engineers of Henry Ford, owner of the D. T. & L. railroad, are working now on a plan for the elimination of some of the heavy grades on the railroad's new route between Washington C. H. and Chillicothe.

VOLIVA DIES

HIGHLAND, Ill., Aug. 11.—Chester A. Voliva, brother of Wilbur Glenn Voliva, head of the Zion Church at Zion, Ill., was dead here today from injuries received when struck by a Pennsylvania train. Burial will be in Zion.

DRUGGIST SUICIDES

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 11.—Fearing that he had contracted a disease said to have proved fatal previously to two members of his family, David Tew, 22, a druggist, ended his life here by taking poison.

NEW SAFETY CHIEF

UHRICHVILLE, O., Aug. 11.—Walter Shaffer has been named safety director of this city, following the resignation of Charles Pfeiffer.

DAD WINS, SON LOSES

NEWCOMERTOWN, O., Aug. 11.—Charles Starker will be the Republican candidate for mayor of this city, but his son, Charles Starker Jr., candidate for the nomination for city clerk was defeated by another candidate.

the death chair when the news came. They wore the gray prison trousers and blue and white shirts with short sleeves. All were resigned to their going. Sacco, weak from his twenty-five days of hunger striking, lay on his cot, his eyes closed. Vanzetti, stronger and more philosophical, rested quietly. Madeiros, the Portuguese, mumbled in his cell, occasionally Vanzetti would break into a low song in which his companions in the adjacent cells joined.

"Boys," said Warden Hendry, "the governor has given you a respite until August 22. Now I want you to be men, and I want you to eat."

The respite was directed to Sacco, who for twenty-five days has refused food, although it was meant for Vanzetti, too. The fish peddler has eaten only intermittently for a month. Madeiros, for whom no fight is being made and over whose execution there is no hue and cry, has eaten regularly, and everything offered him.

There was silence in the cells for a few moments after the warden made his announcement. Then a sigh from the weakened Sacco, as his companion, Vanzetti, spoke. "I am glad," said Vanzetti, simply. "I want to see my sister before I die."

He referred to the sister from the little town of his nativity in Italy, who is trying to get to America to see her brother before the law takes his life.

There was another low song from the cells soon after the warden's footsteps died away in the death corridor. The song was "Mother O' Mine."

The news of the respite was received quietly enough by the men who were resigned to death. But to their families and to the hundreds of their friends who have flocked to Boston to protest the execution, it was different. There were cheers from those who had been arrested earlier in the day for picketing the state house in their behalf. They went to court today with light hearts to answer charges of sauntering and loitering. While there's life, there's hope.

Mrs. Sacco was in a state of collapse when the news was brought her. She had bade her husband good-bye at the prison yesterday and hurried away to the home of friends. Her small daughter, Inez, who is seven, born after her father's arrest, cried most of the evening because, the friends said, she "felt" something was happening.

Today, the condemned men were to leave the grim, bare cells of the death house for the comparatively more cheerful and ordinary Hill section where ordinary criminals are confined. Al Boston believes, however, that they will be back in those same death cells by the 22nd of August.

JOCKEY INJURED

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 11.—Alexander, Montreal jockey, was reported near death in a local hospital today, as a result of injuries sustained when his mount threw him and he was trampled by other horses in a race at Euclid Park track here yesterday. The rider's skull was fractured, and he suffered other injuries about the body when he fell as the horses broke at the barrier.

WOMAN, CHILD, DIE

Smith, 35, is unconscious with a fractured skull here today, as the result of a collision between their auto and an interurban at Vandalia, here, Wednesday night. A second child, Mary, 4, sustained only minor injuries.

THIRTY FIVE HURT DURING HUGE RIOTS NEAR U. S. EMBASSY

Bobbed Haired Girl
Leads Rioters—Police Effective

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Order was restored by the police early today after a violent outbreak of rioting when thousands of Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers, led by men and women communists, tried to march upon the United States embassy in Grosvenor Gardens.

Thirty-five persons were injured when mounted police drove into the wildly shouting mob in an effort to disperse it.

It was the worst disorder that England has seen since the general strike.

The riot followed a mass meeting of 10,000 persons in Hyde Park at which inflammatory speeches were made.

A. J. ("Emperor") Cook, leader of last year's coal strike, declared: "I warn you. I warn America that if they murder these two men (Sacco and Vanzetti) we will get even with them."

At the conclusion of the Hyde Park meeting Cook urged the demonstrators to march upon the American embassy and make a show of force in hope that the ambassador, A. B. Houghton, (who is at present on vacation in Scotland) would be frightened into cabling the state department to urge that the Sacco-Vanzetti death sentences be remitted.

Waving red flags and singing "The Red Flag" and the "Internationale," the mob tried to fight its way past a cordon of 1,000 foot and mounted policemen into Grosvenor Gardens.

There were 500 policemen in line when the mob began marching down Park Lane in the direction of the embassy. In the van was a young, bobbed haired girl wildly gestulating and shouting: "The damned American turncoats are not going to kill our Sacco and Vanzetti!"

Rapidly reinforced by thousands the mob numbered fully 10,000 when it reached the approaches to Grosvenor Gardens. Mounted police rode in and out attempting to break the crowd into groups, but were unsuccessful.

The situation began to get ugly by midnight and orders were given for the mounted police to charge the mob with drawn batons in an effort to force it back toward Hyde Park.

Mounted police in heavy formation drove their horses into the press, forcing the crowds into side streets amid the shrieks of women, many of whom fainted and had to be taken into adjacent houses for first aid treatment.

The crowd scattered in all directions fighting and struggling with the police. A solid mass of people jammed against the balustrade of a house were precipitated into an area way when other crowds fleeing from the police, were forced against them.

PREDICT STANDARD AND SHELL BATTLE

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 11.—A gasoline war between Standard Oil Company and the Royal Dutch-Shell combination, Standard Oil's most powerful competitor, will be fought out, with Cleveland as the chief battleground, within the next few months, it was predicted here today.

Royal Dutch-Shell is planning to spend several million dollars for the construction of warehouses and other projects in this city, according to well founded reports, and will launch at once into an extensive underselling campaign.

Fred Caley, secretary of the Cleveland Automobile Club, predicted that the situation would result in a drastic slashing of gasoline prices.

"Let 'em fight," Caley remarked. "The Standard-Shell war in Chicago was a real thing for the motorists. Cheaper and better gas all the way around is the result."

The plaintiff claims power rights in the canal and asserts no provision has been made by the city for compensating it. Conversion of the canal was authorized by the last legislature.

A Dayton realty firm, said to be negotiating for the Southwestern Portland Cement Co., Osborn, has taken options on a large section of land, including a number of farms at Spring Valley. Marl deposit is said to have been discovered on some of the land.

The company is said to have offered as high as $400 an acre for the property, which extends along the Pennsylvania Railroad from Spring Valley toward Xenia.

The land includes the farm of Jesse Harner, the Spring Valley Canning Factory, Al Crew farm, Spring Valley Medical Water Co., the land owned by a marl company, the Fields farm, formerly the Saylor place, and test holes are being drilled in the Frank Kyne farm, with a view of striking marl. The company is also prospecting on the Fremont Miers place.

NEVER HURRY MEALS ADVISES ROCKEFELLER

AUBURN, N. Y., Aug. 11.—"The days of worry are over for me, I don't let anything bother me."

John D. Rockefeller, oil magnate, made that statement after visiting his boyhood home in the Finger Lakes region.

"It is true that I am saddened now and then by the death of an old friend, but I make new ones and people are very kind to me. Then again I keep cheerful. There is enough gloom in the world and if I can spread a little sunshine in the world it helps me and I hope it helps others."

Rockefeller is on a diet, he says, but he disciplines himself to eat sparingly, though he eats whatever he likes. He gave the following as one hint to health:

"I never hurry my meals and I'm never in a hurry to leave the table. It's not good for the digestion, if people will use common sense in eating, they won't have much trouble with their stomachs."

Keep Fit!
Good Health Requires Good Elimination.

To be well, you must keep the blood stream free from impurities. If the kidneys lag, allowing body poisons to accumulate, a toxic condition is created. One is apt to feel dull, languid, tired and aching. A nagging backache is sometimes a symptom, with drowsy headaches and dizzy spells. That the kidneys are not functioning properly is often shown by burning or scanty passage of secretions. If you have reason to suspect improper kidney functioning, try Doan's Pills—a tested stimulant diuretic. Users praise them throughout the United States. Ask your neighbor!

Selections from "Bohemian Girl" Balfie

SEEKS HERDS THAT PRODUCE HIGHLY

How many dairy herds average 300 pounds of butter fat per cow yearly? asks J. R. Kimber, county agent. This question is important to dairymen because 300 pounds is about twice the average production of all dairy cows and indicates a profitable herd, he says.

Records analyzed by the United States department of agriculture on 15,000 cows in cow-testing associations indicate that an average production of 150 pounds means a net return of $26 above cost of feed. A cow producing 300 pounds makes a profit of $74, or almost three times as much as the cow which produces only half that amount. The same number of good cows will produce twice as much butter fat and make almost as much profit.

fit as average cows. Or, the same amount of profit can be made by keeping a greatly reduced number of better cows with a consequent saving in feed, labor and other cost.

AMERICAN ROLLING MILLS ANNOUNCES LARGE EXPANSION

MIDDLETOWN, O., Aug. 11.—With the acquisition of the property, plants, business and patents of the Forged Steel Wheel Co., at Elyria, Ohio, and the Columbia Steel Co., of Butler Pa., by the American Rolling Mill Co., of this city, at a reported price of $20,000,000, the latter corporation takes its place in industry as one of the half dozen largest companies in the steel world.

Contracts for purchase of the Butler and Elyria concerns, which were amalgamated last year, have recently been signed, according to announcement of George M. Verity, president of the "Armco" corporation. The plants were to be taken over August 1, and together with the development of a second unit of the company at Ashland, Ky., and the improvements contemplated in connection with the parent plant here, total assets of the American Rolling Mills Co., will total not less than $100,000,000.

Additional employees numbering approximately 1,500 will be added to the company payroll, with purchase of the new units, and as there are at present about 8,500 employed in Ashland and this city, the corporation will have a total of almost 10,000 employees.

The corporation is looking forward to eventually producing from $0,000 to 100,000 tons per month. The two plants now in operation turn out 50,000 tons, and the new plant will add at least one third more tonnage, Verity declared.

Both mills have been operating at capacity since early in the spring and the year is expected to be one of the most prosperous in the company's history.

A hot and cold rolled process in the plan of manufacture has been worked out, the first of its kind in this particular system of mechanical operation. The Ashland mill was the first to develop and put into practical operation a continuous sheet metal mill, about three years ago.

The amalgamation, Verity pointed out, brings together, under the management of the American Rolling Mill Co., the two outstanding developments which cover the only known means of purely mechanical operation in the manufacture of sheet metal, either in the form of sheets or strips.

The Forged Steel Wheel plant at Elyria has a capacity of 10,000 tons per month in finished forged steel

wheels. The plant turns out a special high grade railway car wheel.

mont. "For who wants to kiss a neck that bristles like a porcupine's back. And the razor does bring bristles; it's an established fact."

The national barber executive, here assisting in plans for organization of the new State Board of Barber Examiners, declared that all conscientious barbers now are advising their women patrons against neck shaving. Instead they urge the use of the clippers, so that the neck may retain its softness and truly boast "a skin you love to touch."

But women are obdurate, Belmont affirmed, and "porcupine neck" is on the increase. You see evidence of this new menace, asserted Belmont, in the theatre, the street car, the church, the home, and the barber shop. You see it, in fact wherever the nape of the neck is seen.

Belmont's return to Sacramento followed a visit to Hollywood and the movie colony, whence he was called by the late queens of filmdom to prove his recent assertion that natural blondes do not have curly hair after they reach adult years. His visit was made after many of the film stars had written him, inclosing blonde curls and defying him to prove that they "got that way" in a beauty parlor or the privacy of milady's boudoir.

And Belmont claims that he proved the truth of his contention. True blondes, born that way, with all-golden or straw white hair, do not have natural curls, he insists. To clinch the argument, he put the allegedly blonde curls under a microscope, as it is a scientifically established fact that blonde hair is flat, while dark hairs are round. This is one feature that can not be changed in the beauty parlor, he said, and most of the blonde curls turned out to be round under the microscope. The curl in the real blonde hairs, the glass revealed, had been acquired permanent wave fashion.

Any variant of the everyday

Did you ever try a fruit roast?
The recipe is given below and is well worth trying if you are not already acquainted with it. Make the egg yolks left when you make

TODAY'S RECIPES

Tenderloin Fruit Roast—When possible roast the meat in a water-less roaster, which adds doubly to the flavor of any roast. After allowing twenty-five minutes to the pound for roasting, place the finished product on a large platter.
Then place halved pears on the meat and cover with this pear syrup: One and one-half cups pear syrup, one-fourth cup of brown sugar, two tablespoons cornstarch, one-eighth teaspoon salt. Rind and juice one lemon.

Bring the ingredients to the boiling point and then boil three minutes. Pour over meat and serve hot. Any fruit may be substituted.

Chilled tomatoes with Cream
Slaw—Peel tomatoes, scoop out center and chill on ice. Fill with finely chopped cabbage mixed with the following dressing: One teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon mustard, dash of cayenne, one tablespoon sugar, one egg, one-half cup hot milk, two teaspoons butter,
one-fourth cup hot vinegar. Mix mustard, salt, cayenne and sugar in double boiler. Add eggs (unbeaten), mix well, add hot milk, then butter. Cook until mixture thickens (about ten minutes), stirring constantly. Remove from fire and beat hot vinegar in gradually. Strain and pour over cabbage. Serve cold.

Angel Cake—Whites of nine eggs,
one cup granulated sugar, one teaspoon cream tartar, one cup flour, one teaspoon vanilla. Beat eggs to a stiff froth, stir in sugar by degrees. Sift flour four times, put in cream tartar and sift again. Stir lightly and bake thirty minutes in moderate oven. Do not open oven for ten minutes.

Anchovies are tiny fish preserved in oil. They may be in strips or rolled. They are served as a relish like sardines.

APPLE PUDDING
(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe.)
One cup sugar, one tablespoon butter, one egg, one cup milk,
two teaspoons baking powder,
two cups flour. Cut apples in eighths and spread a layer on top. Sprinkle with granulated sugar.

CHICAGO, Ill.—Jimmy Johnson
knows not only how to turn shaggy
and fuzzy individuals into slick, shiny gentlemen, but he also knows their peculiar desire for a certain kind of tonic. Thus, when one entered his barber shop he was confronted with a question: "Tonic, sir?" And upon saying "Yes," a glass of the most refreshing tonic appeared immediately. But Frank Zink, a patrolman did not have proper appreciation for this kind of refreshments and ordered the barber to appear before the judge.
"Did you have a warrant?" asked the judge. "No," replied the patrolman. "Case dismissed," said
the judge.

BY RED KELLY

WHY ARE YOUR DOG'S ANTICS
SO FUNNY?
Nearly every morning my mail contains at least one dog letter—
that is, a letter from somebody.
often a total stranger, who somehow knows that I like dogs and is kind enough to send me an interesting observation about dog behavior.

The most amusing dog story in several weeks comes from Dr. E.
H. Schwarz, of Edwardsville, Ill., who tells of his pet bull terrier.
It seems that they take a walk together every afternoon, and on the way home always drop in at a butcher shop where he buys the dog a bone. This the dog personally carries home, and he never tries to unwrap or eat the bone en route. But if he sees another dog that he wishes to bark at,
he brings the bone to his master to hold for him until after he is through barking.

When he has said to the other dog all that he thinks necessary, he again takes the bone in his mouth and continues the homeward journey, rejoicing.
This little dog caprice struck me as so funny that I laughed until two neighbors standing nearby became concerned about me and exchanged glances.

Then, still chuckling inwardly,
I tried to figure out just why it

Little Old New York

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Yesterday
I saw a sign in a subway train advertising an imported car. In the whole country I don't believe there are more than five hundred of these cars. The least they sell for is well over $10,000. The upkeep is terrific; parts are hard to get; the car is suited only for the very rich. And yet the agent confidently hopes to secure business by sticking up a few colored cards in subway cars.

In to a store to buy a pair of shoes. After finishing my purchase
I was virtually forced to stay and listen to the salesman. It was a rainy day and he was evidently lonely. His manner was emphatic, argumentative. Showing me a pair of black shoes he said:
"See those? Look like patent leather, don't they? I had to take them out of the window because people were sure they were patent leather—wouldn't believe me when I showed them the same model in stock. That's because I shine 'em often."

"Take that window there now.
How many pairs do you think are there?"
I hazarded sixteen, wondering if this were a new game.
"There are nineteen pairs of shoes in that window," he replied dramatically. "Yesterday I shined them all. Tomorrow I shine the ones in the next window. Day after I go at the back windows. Every window features one model. That one features 648, the other 635, the back window 701 and 650. Next week we feature—"

And he went on naming strings of numbers, shaking his finger at me. No doubt to him these numbers all had some distinct meaning.
How I could have been expected to realize their significance was beyond my comprehension. He went on and on.
I was told how many hours a day he worked; what days he was free, when and where he intended to take his vacation. The policy of the store was big-hearted and accommodating. The founder was fourty years old, a bachelor and had trouble with his liver. He was beginning to tell me about the bright thing his infant child said, when I sneaked out the door and walked hastily away.

Answers to Correspondents
Objections to Hog Meat

"What is the objection to the use of hog meat," Mrs. B. wants to know.
For those who have healthy digestive systems, there is no objection to the use of meat from hogs that have been fed in a cleanly manner and are free from trichina,
and tape worm, or other diseases.
Mrs. B. Trichina is a very pernicious worm that hogs get probably from eating infected rats.
The worms settle in their muscle tissues in little cysts and meat from such animals, if not very thoroughly cooked to destroy the embryonic worms, will infect the person who eats it.
The little encysted worms escape into the stomach and intestines causing an intense irritation with diarrhea and the passing of many worms. What is still worse, many of these worms migrate to the muscles and organs, and if there are very many of them, they cause death. Infected hog meat can also cause tape worms, as I told a correspondent yesterday.
Hog meat may be quite fat and may be indigestible to some. It certainly is a food to be avoided by those who are trying to reduce.
Don't eat any meat that has foreign looking specks on it ("measly" beef or pork, it is called.)

Trouble in Gaining

"Dear Doctor: I belong to the T. T. T. army. I find that every time I begin to force my food, especially the fats and sweets, or take chocolate soda in the afternoons, my stomach rebels, gas forms and I have diarrhea. This condition has to be followed by a light diet, and I lose what I have gained.
MRS. M."
It is not an uncommon experience for those who are trying to gain. Mrs. M., to find that fats and sweets will cause disturbances, so these should be increased very slowly. Cream seems to be the fat that upsets the least,
and if I were you, I would try to take more cream. It would be a good idea to take one ounce of cream and two ounces of milk,
two or three times during the day, between meals, and then gradually increase it until you can take it oftener and richer.
Egg yolks, though high in fat,
also seem to agree with most.
They are also high in iron, which you undoubtedly need. It would be a good plan to take an egg yolk in a half-glass of orange juice, after each meal. Try taking more of the foods that you know agree with you. You've got to stretch your stomach until it can care for more food.
Needless to say, you should have a check-up by a reliable physician to be sure it's only the lack of food that is causing your underweight and your lack of appetite.
By the way, orange juice is a stim-ulator of the appetite, because it is so high in the vitamin B. You had also better get some yeast extracts—these are put up under various trade names as vegetable extracts. They make delicious broths and are very high in vitamin B. They won't add any calories, however, so don't count on them for that. You might use the extracts for flavoring soups and sauces, and gravies; you can also make cream soups of them.

Those who need the instructions on gaining or losing weight may have our pamphlet on the subject. Enclose a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope and two cents in stamps, with request.
Allow at least two weeks for its receipt.

P. S.—Mrs. H. just writes that she gained twenty-one pounds and looks and feels 100 per cent better.
She states she never realized how little she was eating until she began to count her calories!
Hopes for you, Mrs. M.

I Have Said in My Heart

AS TOLD BY ANNABELLE LEE
TO IDAH M'GLONE GIBSON

INDIVIDUALITY

Chapter V

"What have you been doing to Elaine, Mrs. Gibson?"
At the question I turned to face
Annabelle, or Ann as she preferred to be called.

"I did not do anything to her, my dear."

"Well, someone has been pepp-ing her up until you would not know her. The other night she almost beat me out in the popularity race."
"She came into the dining room
of the Pine Tree
Inn, and honestly,
I never knew that little Ellie was good looking before. Up to then she always struck me as only an anemic little imita-
tor of the girl who was first in the swim at the moment."

"We'dnesday
night, however,
she was herself and nobody else."

"I had gone out to dine with that young chap who was Princeton's star athlete last year, and I told myself that in my red and white sports suit, I would be able to cut any tiger's claws."

"We had hardly been seated at the table when Elaine and Harry came in. I had to look twice to see if it were really Elaine."

"She was all in white. I think it was white georgette. Little pleated skirt, white stockings, shoes and hat. Not a vestige of color about her, and yet, she stood out among all of us like a piece of marble statuery among a lot of left-over cigar-store signs."

"My Princeton Tiger, who had been decidedly taciturn up to this moment, asked, the moment his eyes rested on her:

"Who is that stunning looking girl?"

"Now, I would hardly think that Elaine was stunning under any circumstances, so I was looking around the room to see if my 'boy friend' meant anyone else."

"I mean that little girl in white,
over there," he said. "She looks like a pocket edition of the Vestal Virgin."

"That is Elaine—," I said, dryly.

"Do you know her?" he asked.

"Very well."

"Introduce me to her. I want to dance with her."

"Are you sure that Vestal Virgin dance?" I asked. I tried, but I am afraid unsuccessfully, to keep from letting my voice sound sarcastic.

"Sure! Of course, I'm sure. That girl has more sex appeal than anyone here tonight. She is the kind of girl that makes almost every other one seem blowsy. Look at her mouth. You could kiss that mouth without feeling that you were putting your lips against a lump of congealed salad oil. That girl knows her onions, and she can harvest them any time she wants to. That mushy faced bit of horseradish has not taken his eyes off her long enough to order their dinner."

"Well, I thought, I'll get the trouble over as soon as possible; so when we got up to dance, I managed to stop at Elaine's and Harry's
table."

"What have you been doing to yourself?" I managed to whisper to her.

"I've been dressing my soul,"
she answered.

"Then I thought of my Princeton Tiger's assertion—that she looked like a Vestal Virgin, and decided that she had found herself."

"For one horrible moment I even had a temptation to buy a new white dress, throw away my rouge and lip-stick, and—I came to just in time to hear Elaine say, 'Oh, I do not talk slang. I don't dance the Charleston or smoke cigarettes.
Not that I find fault with any other girl for doing those things, but for me—' An expressive shrug of her shoulders and a puckering of her lips in a way that I knew made each man want to kiss her."

"A waiter at that moment said
respectfully, 'Your dinner is served, Miss,' and we went back to our
table."

"Good heavens, did you see the way those little curls clung to that girl's white neck? A sight like that makes gentlemen forsake blondes
as well as home and mother."

"I'm glad, Syd, I said, 'that you happen to be my cousin, for if you were not, I would probably go home and swallow a mercury tablet or two.'"

"I'm not used to having the man with me suddenly find a Vestal Virgin with sex appeal at the next table in a hotel."

"Of course, Mrs. Gibson, I do not know, yet, whether Elaine is able to carry it through; but she has begun all right. She makes every man who comes near her mentally ask, 'Tell me, pretty maiden, are there any more at home like you?'"

"When we left her table to come back to our (v.n. I heard Harry saying, 'I like your simplicity so much better, darling, than Ann's sophistication. Here I brought you my frat pin. You promised me you would wear it, you know.'"

"Then and there I silently made a vow to be myself even if I lost out on the Vestal Virgin racket."
Memo: Just let your personality shine before men and they will imagine all the rest.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

FAULT OR ILLNESS?

When an ordinary fault becomes exaggerated until it is an obsession, something is wrong with the person and a doctor should be called.
It indicates an abnormal state of mind.

This is the case as stated in the following letter. No sane person would act as this man's wife is doing:

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I have been married for six years and have children. My wife is so jealous that it makes life miserable for me and herself too. If we have a lady friend to visit our home and I show her the least courtesy my wife accuses me of being too intimate with her. In other words, I am not allowed to speak friendly to a woman without hearing some very unpleasant remarks. If I get friendly with little girls 10 and 12
that are playing with my children
she wants to know why I am always picking on little girls."

"I have tried to talk and make her understand me. I was raised to respect all ladies and I was never mistrusted by any other lady friend. I have about given up any hope of happiness, for I am not allowed to go out with a man friend without having 'women' thrown at me by my wife. We are between 25 and 30 years old.
H. A. S."

Your wife is ill and should be taken to a good doctor, one that is skilled in mental troubles. She probably was naturally of a jealous disposition and some physical ailment has taken the form of a phobia on this one subject. As you rightly say, there can be no happiness for either of you while this continues but she suffers torture and should be pitied, although you doubtless feel she should control herself to a certain extent at least.

Here's a girl who doubts that there is romance in this dull old world:

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a girl 18.
I read a great deal—Tolstoi, Dickens, Galsworthy, Maugham, as well as the poets, both old and modern.
All speak of love as the grand, consuming passion. I see no evidences of such a thing on the faces of the people around me. When I go out with boys—and I have several nice friends—we have good times, but I feel no thrill. Even when I let a boy kiss me—which I do occasionally—it leaves me cold."

"Is there such a thing as love?"
Do you think I shall ever experience it?

ELEANOR."

I have no doubt you will, my dear. You have not met the right man yet to stir your pulses. There really and truly is such a thing as romantic love that makes this sometimes prosaic world a rosy
place and ordinary men and women
"as gods."

To be courteous to ALL is a mark of good breeding.

How to Achieve Beauty

ERADICATING FRECKLES

Today I shall devote my talk to freckles, which are really the most distressing of summer beauty ills.
Freckles are not on the surface of the skin, but lie just beneath
the cuticle, that outside layer
that is composed of tiny scales
laid all over the body like over-
glazes on a roof.
These scales are constantly rubbing off and being replaced.
They are the armour of protection that keeps the sensitive skin
from the agony of too much sensation.

Immediately beneath the cuticle are little cells containing the pigment or coloring matter. Their sensitiveness to outside influences differs widely with different people. Some freckle, others tan, and others are little inclined to do either.

You cannot change your susceptibility to tan or freckles, you can only prevent too much contact with the sun's light rays in the ways I have told you in my talks on prevention. Usually it is the person with an exceptionally thin cuticle who freckles. To remove the blemishes, you must use a preparation that will penetrate beneath this outer layer to the pigment cells.

Lemon juice and salt, applied with a camel's hair brush, is good for removing light freckles. Let the juice dry in and later massage with a cold cream. A half and half solution of peroxide and witch hazel may be applied in the same way.

However, you can see from my explanation of freckles, that they are exceedingly difficult to remove. You will probably be saved much time and effort and perhaps the disappointment of unsuccessful attempts by using a good reliable freckle cream.

Then do not forget that eternal vigilance is the price of clear skin to a woman who has a tendency to freckle. You can have so much more peace of mind by protecting your skin against freckles than by removing them and then finding all your work undone
by a single day's exposure.

I have spoken now of repairing freckles, tan and sunburn, the most obvious of summer beauty ills, and I shall devote some future talks to more obscure, but every bit as important, effects of the hot weather on your looks.

LANG CHEVROLET IN EXTRA WINNING WIN OVER POST OFFICE

It required twelve innings for Lang Chevrolet Co. to cke out a 13 to 10 victory over the last-place Post Office nine in a Class B Xenia Playground League soft ball game at Cox Memorial Athletic Field Wednesday night. The contest was the first extra-inning game of the league season. By its victory, the auto firm still retains a mathematical chance to tie the Firemen for the Class B championship. The Fire Department has one more game to play and Lang Chevrolet two contests. It was a grueling struggle all the way Wednesday. The ball carriers played air tight ball and led most of the way. The Chevrolet rallied in the first half of the ninth to tie the score at 10 to 10 by scoring three runs.

Both sides went scoreless in the tenth and eleventh frames but Lang's team pounded out three runs in the twelfth to achieve victory. Lang started on the mound for the winners but was replaced by Geger, who hurled fine ball. McCoy lasted the route in the box for the Post Office.

Lang's lineup: Wead, 3b; Lang, p-1b; Berger, c; Geger, 1b; Smith, ss; Gibney, lf; Ratchford, 2b; McCoy, rf; Rice, cf.

Post Office lineup: Cope, c; Towles, ss; Gaines, 3b; Lane, 1b; McCormick, rf; McCoy, p; Cope, rf; Lane, cf; Wright, 2b.

Score by innings:

SCOUTMASTERS ARE ENJOYING FISHING

Scoutmasters J. J. Stout and R. H. Kingsbury, this city, who are enjoying a camping trip at North Bay, Ontario, Canada, are proving ardent disciples of Isaac Walton. Both are catching plenty of fish and came in one morning with eight big pike and pickerel that weighed more than twenty-five pounds. One measured twenty-eight inches in length and weighed three and one-half pounds. Scoutmaster Stout also had the pleasure of attending a Rotary Club luncheon. The club in question is the farthest north in North America.

Sport Ritticisms by BILL RITT

Tex Rickard would probably spell it Chicago.

Ernst Vierkotter, German water star, has engaged a six-piece orchestra to follow him and play during his next long jaunt through the waves. He probably figures it will make him swim to beat the band.

New York isn't excited because a star Cuban soccer team will play there. The town would much rather view the one-man soccer from Hollywood.

Mrs. Dempsey won't get to see Jack fight at Chicago. And if he repeats his Philadelphia showing, neither will the fans.

It's almost time for the country's fee men to doff their tongs and slip on the old nose guards.

Northwestern University announces it has discarded the huddle system but it's a ten-to-one shot the co-eds haven't.

REYNOLDS ELIMINATES JACK BARLOW TO CUP TOURNAMENT

Eber Reynolds furnished a distinct upset in the semi-finals of the President's Cup golf tournament at the Xenia Country Club, by eliminating Jack Barlow, the favorite, one up in their eighteen-hole match Wednesday afternoon. The victory placed Reynolds in the finals. He will meet the winner of the Ralph Hall-A. H. Finley semi-final match, to be played off Saturday, in the finals for the president's trophy next week. Reynolds received a seven-stroke handicap in his match with Barlow and the tourney favorite found this too difficult to overcome. Both players shot fine golf, Barlow completing the two rounds in seventy-five, while Reynolds turned in a card of eighty-one.

RHEUMATISM

May be relieved by rational treatment—it can not be rubbed away.

Are you one of those unfortunate who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, commonly called rheumatism, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep? You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.?

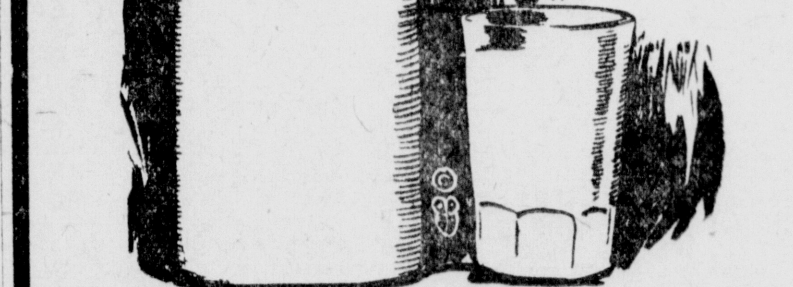

For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

"I suffered from rheumatism for a good many years. At times my joints would swell so, I couldn't walk. I tried almost everything. Went to Hot Springs. . . then finally decided to try S.S.S. I took a course. In a short time the rheumatic pains entirely left me. I am now in perfect health, and want to add that I have tried all kinds of medicines but I think S.S.S. is the best." Earl C. Campbell, 115 West Main Street, Johnson City, Tenn.

S.S.S. is purely vegetable. It is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

From youth to later years S.S.S. is a proven tonic—give it and take it where a tonic is indicated.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

A BUSY DAY IN BEEVILLE

Old Sol smiled. "A good day's work!" said he. Grass and wheat and birds are all very well—I love them all—but spring wouldn't be spring without the flowers! And now that my inbeams have called the blossoms forth from their dark prisons, un- as I very much miss my guess, the bees will soon be along. And the bees will set things humming!

DOWN IN BEE TOWN THINGS WERE HUMMING!

"Yes, siree! Winter is fine—the old world couldn't get along without it—but give me Spring! Then is the time when I have my fun! There is so much to do to make things grow—so many folks make lappy. And then comes summer, dear, beautiful Summer. ha! I thought so! A moving list above the Beehives. The bees have smelled the sweet flow- scents and are going a-gathering pollen."

Old Sol was right. Down in Beeville things were humming. In and out of their green roofed cottages bustled the busy, brown workers, every one of them anxious to finish the task she had on hand before the end of the first perfect spring day.

The tidy little housekeepers were hard at spring cleaning, making the storerooms fresh and sweet for the new supply of honey that was soon to fill them; straightening up the nurseries; brushing up any bits of yellow pollen that might have sifted to the waxen floor.

Out on the front porches strolled the young men of the village—the lazy drones who did nothing at all the whole livelong day but have a good time dawdling in the sunshine among the flowers, and at night came home to sup heartily upon rose wine and honey.

Right now these lazy young loafers were laughing among themselves at the hustle-bustle going on all around them, watching with scorn the workers who were setting off to the flower market to gather pollen.

"Silly things!" buzzed they. "Working so hard, and for what? To feed all those hungry little mouths of the babies of the hive. And since more and more babies are being born in Beetown they will have to keep right on gathering honey. Pooh! Look at us! We don't lift a leg and yet we have all we wish to eat and lots of fun."

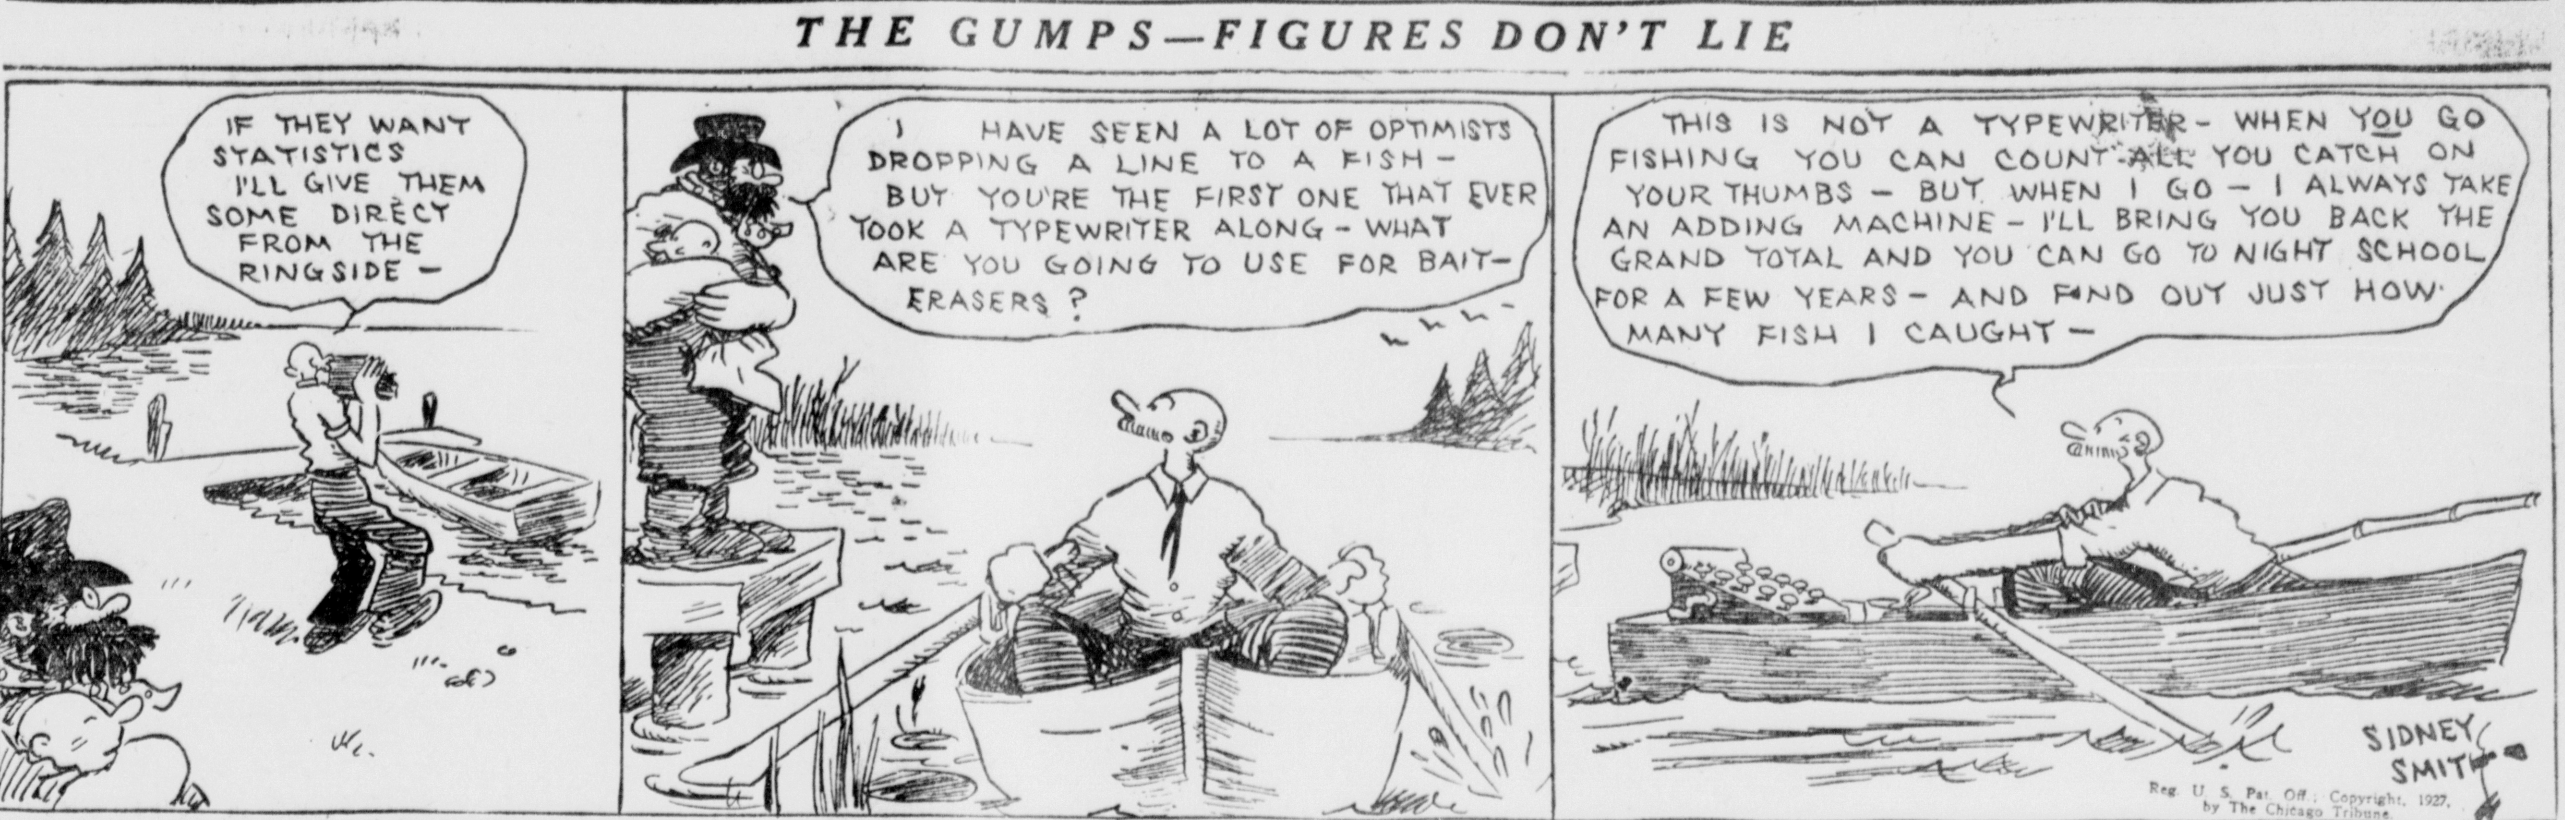

"Yes, but our time is at hand. When the new Queen comes and so many new babies arrive that the cottages will not hold them all some of the old bees must go to make room for the new ones. Since we are of no earthly use in the community the workers will drive us away first." So spoke a wise fellow, but the others laughed at him.

"Nonsense! Drive us away? Why, we are the dandies of Beetown. What would the ladies ever do without us? Besides, where could we go? We can't fly far, you know."

"All the worse for us. Then the workers will overtake and kill us," continued the drone who seemed to know it all.

"The very idea! How dare you say such a thing!" The young gentlemen became very excited and were angrily buzzing about the speaker when they were suddenly silenced.

Next—"At the Queen's Command."

Sally's Shoulders

by BEATRICE BURTON, Author of "HER MAN," "HONEY LOU," "THE HOLLYWOOD GIRL," ETC.

"You'll just have to tuck us in somewhere," wailed Mabel

CHAPTER XXIV

SALLY'S mother had been married for more than 23 years, and she was at the top-end of middle age. But, somehow, the coming of that telegram from her husband seemed to have taken years and years from her.

The flush that lay across her face like a film gave it a look of youth, and there was a new brightness in her heavy-lidded eyes. She got up from her chair, not slowly, as she usually did, but with light quickness. "You'll have to put him in Millie's room," she said, and even her voice sounded younger and more vibrant. "And you'll have to hurry to get it ready. His train gets in at 10 o'clock."

Sally noticed that her step, as she crossed the room was springy. She turned suddenly. "I'll tell you what we'll do!" she cried excitedly. "We'll have Beau and Mabel go down to the station and meet him in their car! I just want him to see how well we've got along without him all these years—automobiles and everything—"

In that moment Sally was glad that she had kept her from knowing how great a failure Beau really was, and how great a struggle they really were having to get along.

Smiling with satisfaction, her mother turned towards the telephone in the hall and then suddenly stopped once more.

"Phaw!" I keep forgetting that the children haven't a phone in that new flat of theirs. Sally, you'll have to run over there and tell them I want them to go down and meet their papa with the car at 10 o'clock. And you'd better go now, and so your work here later. For they're probably at home eating supper, and you'll catch them in now."

That was true. Sally reflected. For the young Jerome practically lived in their little second-hand car these days. Nothing but food and sleep and their job kept them out of it. It was standing in all its flaming pompousness before the door of the brand-new apartment building where they lived. One midnight had been crushed in and the paint knocked from it in spots. But except for that, it was just as glossy as ever. And just as blindingly, glaringly, red.

Sally rang their door-bell, and after two or three minutes she rang again. "Oh, why don't they answer?" she asked herself, impatiently. "They must know I know they're here, with that car standing in the street!" And just then the inner door gave a click and she opened it.

Beau and Mabel had taken a tiny flat on the top floor of the building. By the time Sally reached the top she was out of breath and her knees shook.

"What a high mountain you live on!" she was beginning cheerfully, when the sight of Mabel's face, as she opened the door, stopped her.

Mabel had been crying. Her small, tilted nose was quite scarlet at the end, and there were pink rims around her eyes. Water came from her black hair and a layer of cold cream on her tear-stained face did not improve her appearance the least bit.

"Come in," Mabel said, "I'm getting myself something to eat—"

And then, without stopping to show Sally her new domain with a bride's delight in her home, she stalked straight through the small rooms to the tiny kitchen at the back.

She was boiling four potatoes in a gallon of water on the stove, and some bread, sliced almost an inch thick, was piled on a plate on the table.

Inside it was a glass bowl of butter, and the butter had toast crumbs all over it.

"Here, let me help you get things ready," offered Sally, taking all this in with one sweep of her blue eyes. "Have you an apron?"

Mabel had one. It was stained with egg and coffee, but it was nevertheless, an apron. Sally put it on and went to work, emptying out most of the water from the potato kettle, trimming off the edges of the bread slices, scraping the toast crumbs from the butter.

"What else are you going to have?" she asked when she had done that. "What kind of meat have you?"

"The—the—there isn't any meat," Mabel answered, and her voice shook. No meat, thought Sally, for young Beau had thought nothing of putting away a pound of it at a meal when he lived at home!

"Eggs?" she asked, remembering that Beau would eat an omelet, although he grumbled about having to eat eggs when what he wanted was sirloin steak or three pork chops. As the man of the family, he had usually had what he wanted, too.

"The—the—there aren't any eggs!" wailed Mabel, and put her head down into her hands and began to sob wildly.

Sally leaned over her little sister-in-law and patted her small, shaking shoulders.

"Well, that's nothing to have hysterics over, Mabel," she said. "Where's Beau?"

At that Mabel began to sob more wildly than before.

"I don't know!" she wailed. "He walked out on me a few minutes ago—because there wasn't any meat for supper!"

She stopped crying after a minute, and seemed to be thinking over her wrongs. Then she said: "The low hound dog," with great venom, and seemed to feel better.

"Do you think he'll be back soon?" asked Sally. "Our father's coming home tonight. You know mother wired him about Millie, and he'll be here at 10 o'clock. Mother wanted you and Beau to go and meet him in the car to show him how well we're getting along—how well Beau's getting along, I mean."

"How well Beau's getting along?" Mabel repeated with great scorn. "How well Beau's getting along? I'd have thought that if I didn't feel so much like crying or swearing, I'd just mad through and through at your brother! And I don't know whether I'm going to go on living with him or not! If he's getting along well I'm the Brooklyn bridge!" Mabel was full of wise cracks.

But by that Sally got the whole story from her. She had bought herself a flat instead of keeping the $10 that it cost for the household expenses.

So there had been no meat for supper. And when Beau had found it out, he had flung himself out of the little honeymoon flat, telling her that he'd go and buy himself a decent meal somewhere else.

"He told me I could sit here and eat bread and potatoes by myself," blubbered Mabel, unhappily. "And he ought to be ashamed of himself. Oh, Sally, there's just no use in our trying to have a home of our own, because it takes every nickel we earn. You'll just have to let us come and live with you! You can tuck us in somewhere, I guess."

She laid her hands on the white enamel table top before her. The nails were varnished a bright coral pink and they were long and pointed, all except one. That had been broken off, and there was a large blister on one thumb.

"Look at my hands—just ruined for typewriting!" wailed Mabel. "I just can't hold down an office job and keep house, too. It's too much to expect of a girl. And the prices of food! Oh, why did I ever marry Beau Jerome? Why did I?"

She was despairing personally as she sat there at the table in her sloppy clothes, her lips drawn down, her eyes watery with tears, and her breath coming in little sobbing gasps.

Sally's warm, generous heart was filled with pity for her. She seemed so weak-begone and helpless and incapable of facing the hard tasks of life. A broken finger nail was a tragedy to her. A new hat every few weeks was an absolute necessity to her.

Sally saw it all, and she went on putting her shoulders with one of her own hands that had known many a broken nail and blister—that could wield a broom as deftly as they could tap a typewriter.

"All right, Mabel," she said, comfortingly. "Well see about it as soon as my father leaves. He won't be here long, I imagine."

The promise was scarcely off her lips when the front door opened and closed sharply. There came a sound of hurrying young feet and Beau rapped into the kitchen with a parcel in his hand.

It is doubtful if anybody ever makes himself or anything else, quite perfect; but it does a world of good to keep aiming at perfection.

That is the way to get as close to it as possible.

"Come on, dust off the top of the stove!" he hailed his miserable better-half. "Papa's brought home some hamburger steak and beans!" He dumped his package on the table, and Mabel fairly leaped into his arms, rubbing her cold-creamed cheek against his sleeve like an affectionate kitten.

"Oh, Beau, I knew you wouldn't leave me!" she sighed unevenly. "And Beau!" The most wonderful thing! Sally's promised to let us live at home again, just as we knew she would!"

Sally's heart sank at her words, but Beau's shiny blue eyes were almost honest for once as he turned
